PENFIELD.

Rev. W. S. Jacobs, late resident pastor of the Congregational church, preached his introductory sermon, in Detroit, Mich., on Sunday last. His family will join him some time this week.

Mr. Newton Moore, a young theologian from Oberlin college was to have honored us with a trial discourse, but failed to materialize, leaving his audience to enjoy an empty pulpit.

Rev. Wm. Denslow, from Atwood center, will occupy the above mentioned pulpit on Sunday next. It is to be hoped that a patient people may not again meet with disappointment.

Ed. Moore and family removed from the center to the old "Barrett farm" now owned by L. S. Boise, during the past week.

The house vacated by Mr. Moore was promptly occupied by Ernest Nichols and wife, late Miss Grace Branson.

Guy Smith and wife are at present guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Krebs. The entire family were made happy a few weeks since by the arrival of a tiny guest to increase the family, and Guy is stepping high. Mr. and Mrs. Smith recently removed from the farm of A. B. Hayes, to the old "Hatch" farm on the Smith Road.

Henry Lewis, last week removed his family to the "Barlow Homestead," late vacated by Geo. McFadden, who, a short time ago, took up his residence in LaGrange.

John Brouse and wife, nee Miss Lottie Foster, have just moved on the "McClain Homestead" lately vacated by C. C. Gardiner, who will shortly remove to Trumbull county.

Died, March 7, 1899, at his home in Penfield, Mr. Eliza Jackson, aged 81 years and 6 months. Mr. Jackson was one of our few remaining pioneers of Penfield township, honest and true, respected by all, for his general kind heartedness, and liberality in any good cause. One of those grand old men of past days, whose straightforward dealing made his unassisted word, equivalent to another man's bond; he was ever willing to contribute to any good cause, and his children have great pride in recalling to mind, the unblemished reputation of the old pioneer. He will be greatly missed by all his family and neighbors, and the bereaved ones have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their great loss.

He was born in Champion, Jefferson county, New York, October 8, 1818, and married Miss Eleanor Rowland, July 4, 1848.

Seven years later, in March, 1850, he removed to Penfield, taking up the homestead still occupied by his son and daughter, since his death, in the midst of a vast woodland wilderness, where no ax had yet been laid to the giant trees of the forest. He cleared sufficient space for his home, assisted by none, felling trees, burning brush, and all the hard labor that transformed the wilderness into a garden, then erected his humble log cabin, and there erected his family altar, with the cry of the fierce forest wolves, as a lullaby, soothing him to slumber.

The modest cabin was succeeded by a large, comfortable, brick building, many years later, and the homestead reared with pain and fatigue is now as good as any in the township.

It is well for the present and rising generations, to pause and give a thought to this noble old man, and his lion-hearted compatriots who made our homes the pleasant abiding places they now are, as compared with the homes enjoyed by those who brought our township to its present stage of civilization.

Now that Rev. Mathew Starr and Eliza Jackson, have been called to a better home, of our old pioneers there now remain but four: viz:

Robert Denham, of LaGrange, aged 88, Mr. A. McClain, J. C. Smith, W. F. Langdon and West Hastings.

These five are the juvenile settlers, it must be remembered. The oldest is gone. Robert Denham, aged 88, is the oldest of those remaining for some years past. Their memory should be treasured, and revered, as long as Penfield shall be Penfield, and as long as a descendant of these old veterans shall live, they should embalm their memories deep in their hearts, a lasting monument of love and veneration.

That Cough Hangs On

You have used all sorts of cough remedies but it does not yield; it is too deep seated. It may wear itself out in time, but it is more liable to produce la grippe, pneumonia or a serious throat affection. You need something that will give you strength and build up the body.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

will do this when everything else fails. There is no doubt about it. It nourishes, strengthens, builds up and makes the body strong and healthy, not only to throw off this hard cough, but to fortify the system against further attacks. If you are run down or emaciated you should certainly take this nourishing food medicine.

MATRIMONY IN AFRICA.

Many of the Native Traders Have Wives in Every Town They Visit.

The sailor who had a wife in every port he visited has his counterpart in the native trader of West Africa who has a wife in every village with which he trades. There is one important difference—Jack's wives helped to spend his money, whereas the trader's wives help to make it. Mrs. Kingsley tells us of the custom, and also gives the explanation.

It would be useless for the trader to sit at home and wait for his customers to come to him, because each village is usually at feud with all the neighboring villages and the inhabitants dare not venture beyond their own district on pain of being robbed at first and eaten afterward. On the other hand, it is obviously a risky thing for a black trader to travel from village to village with an assortment of the very goods best calculated to arouse the cupidity of the gullible African. To lessen the danger he resorts to frequent matrimony. In every village he takes a wife from one of the most important families and so secures a faction who favor him. The African wife is not subject to jealousy, and so each of the wives is more than content to have a husband who can keep her supplied with cloth and beads to outshine her neighbors. Her male relatives are proud of her connection with so important a man, and hope besides to be especially favored in matters of business. In return they take his part in disputes and help him to collect his debts and treat him generally as a respected member of the family.

A DIMINUTIVE REVOLVER.

It is Only One Inch and a Half Long Yet It Shoots With Great Accuracy.

Perhaps the smallest revolver ever known has been discovered in Germany. It is 1 1/2 inches long and is made of steel, gold-plated. The handle is made of pearl. The hammer and trigger work exactly as in a regular revolver, and the cylinder holds seven cartridges. Each cartridge is a rammer and pair of pliers are used. These are attached to the handle by a ring. The cartridge is picked up with the pliers, inserted into the chamber and rammed into place. The cartridges are charged with fulminate, and the ball is about the size of a No. 8 shot. When the trigger is pulled and the hammer strikes the cartridge there is an explosion about as loud as when a gun cap is snapped.

This little revolver shoots accurately, but it is so small that one cannot handle it so that it may be aimed exactly. The ball has force enough to go through a heavy cardboard. The hole where it enters is very small, but it has tearing capacity when it comes out.

The revolver was bought by Mr. C. J. Schmelzer, who tested its shooting powers in his office one day. He placed a card on his desk and fired. There was a little scream from the stenographer on the other side of the room, who was rubbing her neck and insisted that something had stung her. The ball had gone through the cardboard, struck the lock of the desk, glanced off across the room and hit the young woman.
